Commentary

The market was prevalently short throughout the 24 hours. Some trades on the interconnectors were taken for positive margin over the morning pick-up and in the late evening. Overnight, offers were accepted in the BM and trades on generating units were taken to manage voltage levels in England. RoCoF risk was mitigated with multiple trades on the interconnectors and with BM actions. Before midnight, BM actions were required to ease power flow restrictions between the English-Scottish boundary.
